

IRISH SETTLEMENT IS DEVELOPING NEW HOME RULE TANGLE

Scotland and Wales Already Considering Possibility of Separation.

LONDON, April 6.—The birth of the Irish Free State has led to renewed talk in some quarters of "home rule all around," that is, autonomy for Scotland and Wales as a part from England proper.

Home rule for Wales has already entered the range of practical politics, says an article in the Pall Mall Gazette.

Hitherto there have been among Welsh politicians two schools of thought. One has urged the setting up of a Welsh secretariatship similar to the office of the secretary of Scotland, so that Welsh administration may first be disentangled from English affairs; the other favoring a comprehensive home rule scheme without any preliminaries.

Prime Minister Lloyd George, himself a Welshman, has hinted that he would look with favor on a comprehensive home rule measure composed of all the Welsh members of the house of commons—to draft and adopt a home rule scheme as the basis of a measure to be introduced in parliament at the earliest opportunity.

This has in turn fired the Scottish members, who at a party meeting, have appointed a committee to confer with the Welsh members with a view to joint action.

Under the Welsh plan the Imperial parliament would reserve its powers on questions affecting the crown, peace and war, foreign affairs, regulations of trade and industrial legislation and postal and other communications.

To a Welsh parliament would go control of local government, education, judiciary, agriculture and internal commerce. Restoration of ancient office and title of lord president of Wales is proposed.

To save the Welsh rural area from domination by the great industrial population of the south, the Welsh parliament would include an upper house, consisting of two representatives of each county and county borough and two from the national university of Wales.

There is some opposition to the plan even in Wales but the proposals come nearer to meeting the aspirations of moderate nationalist Wales than anything that has hitherto been advanced. Though there is little likelihood of immediate legislation, belief in Welsh nationalist members that the principle is within sight of a parliament in Cardiff is firm and general.

MINERS' TRIALS MAY LAST YEARS

500 Men Indicted and Cost of Cases to State Would be $7,000,000.

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., April 6.—If every one of the 500 or more men indicted as a result of the miners' so-called "rebellion" last August were brought to trial it would cost the state of Virginia $7,000,000, and the trial would last 110 years, according to H. W. Houston, chief counsel for the United Mine Workers. Trial of these many men is scheduled to begin at Charles Town, Jefferson county, April 24.

"Obviously the state will never attempt to try all of these cases," Houston said. "Hundreds of the 500 or more indictments will be no longer pressed. In my opinion, not more than six United Mine Workers officials will be tried as a result of the so-called insurrection."

Theoretically, if the state intends to try all the cases, it will be the biggest legal action in American history. But the task of trying so many men is impossible, according to Isaac Scott, acting secretary of District 17, United Mine Workers. Scott declares it is the intention of the defendants to subpoena 10,000 witnesses who are widely scattered, and it would be impossible to assemble them all on the same day.

Quite a number of the men under indictment face charges of treason against the state. Conviction may be followed by long prison sentences, life imprisonment, or even the death penalty, if the court sees fit to impose it.

During the fighting at the height of the invasion a number of men lost their lives. Atty. Houston, for Remember the name, Dr. Carey's Marsh-Root Prescription No. 177. No other medicine can take its place.

EVEN SO, YOU HADN'T OUGHT TO FEAR A LITTLE COMPETITION LIKE THAT!!!

The United Mine Workers, declares that in cases where United Mine Workers members or officials are accused of treason, conspiracy and complicity in the deaths, the defense will show the union had nothing to do with the alleged rebellion.

"There were many involved who had nothing to do with the union," Houston said.

The state charges the men who are believed to be responsible for deaths during the fighting with murder.

Atty. Houston announces that in all cases a plea of not guilty will be entered.

Frank P. Walsh, international labor leader, is expected to be an attorney for the defense. Several of the leading attorneys for the state have been engaged to act as counsel for the defense.

Among the most important defendants are: C. Frank Keeney, president of District 17, United Mine Workers, and other district officials as follows: William Pettry, vice president; Fred Mooney, secretary, as well as William Blizzard, president of Sub-District No. 4.

Final Curtain Falling
On Star of the 70's

NEW YORK, April 6.—Years ago, when Rose Coghlan, famous actress, left England for America, the Prince of Wales, later King Edward, said to her:

"Don't stay too long in America. They don't like old women."

Today Rose Coghlan, heroine of scores of stage triumphs, whose name blazed in gas lights on Broadway before it became the great white way, lies sick and poor in New York. She is ready to sell her costumes to keep the wolf away.

Rose Coghlan, who used to play to S. R. O. night after night, lies in bed in a furnished room attended only by her daughter, Mrs. Richard Pittman. She won't accept charity. Instead, the costume she wore in

PRINCESS MARY TO HAVE LORD'S SEAT

Marriage Bars Her From Throne, But Bestowal of Peerage is Planned.

LONDON, April 6.—Though Princess Mary will never rule the British empire, because of her marriage out of royalty, she may have a seat in the house of lords.

The decision of the privy council committee of the house of lords to grant a seat to Lady Rhonda has led to consideration of the possibility of Princess Mary ascending to a seat in that dignified legislative body.

King George is expected sooner or later to bestow a peerage upon Princess Mary in her own right, as he has given peerages to his sons. With such a peerage the princess would be entitled to a seat in lords.

Whether she would care to occupy this seat is quite another matter. This English girl, who has been the toast of London for the past three months, is of a shy and retiring nature. Like her mother, the queen, she cannot be described as a progressive in this day, when some of the women of England are affecting canes, monocles and cigars.

Lady Rhonda's ascension to a seat in lords has raised the hopes of advanced thinkers among Britain's womenkind. It has furnished material for a great deal of chatter in the feminist clubs of London. Lady Rhonda is a brilliant business woman. She may be expected to steer an advanced and dignified course in her legislative career, but what of the others who may follow her into the house of lords?

It is general opinion among feminists that the advanced women of England can do their sex greater benefit by seeking seats in the house of commons.

They are wondering now, these women who are admittedly feminists, whether there will ever be a woman as Lord Chancellor.

The success of Lady Rhonda has led to new desires, and it wouldn't be a surprise if the women of England even went so far as to hope that some day a woman might occupy the premiership.

Lady Rhonda's victory comes as most encouraging at this time because there has been a desperate battle in progress whereby women sought admittance to the ranks of hierarchies, and they met defeat.

The women of Great Britain are alive to their opportunities, and they indicate that they intend to seize them.

Lady Teazle, one of her greatest successes, is doomed to go on the market and her other gowns as well.

She is 71 years old now, she can't remember her lines and she is living on what she saved during her last engagement.

The final curtain is slowly falling—and the audience is gone.

THE NEWEST EVENING GOWNS

The Low Decolletes
Mark Departure from the Bateau Neckline

By ANNETTE BRADSHAW

This Simple
Frock Is of Bright Green
Paradise Crepe.

Amber Beads Trim This Extreme Silver-Cloth Gown at the Right.

THE bateau neckline which has marked our decolletes for some time past is giving way, especially in evening frocks, to necklines of more irregularity.

This tendency was first noted in French imports, in gowns worn by smart opera audiences and those of theatre first nights. It is also very noticeable in gowns worn on the stage. Stage clothes, by the way, are playing an increasingly bigger part in the trend of our fashions.

The model at the right, which derives its inspiration from a frock in one of the new musical hits, shows a neckline of daring cut. A cleverly-arranged under-bodice of fine net holds the decollete in place, while a string of amber beads about the neck lends its support to the same cause. Amber beads are repeated at the girdle.

Bright green paradise crepe forms the other frock, which carries out its long lines even in the V neck. The front and back are curved at the hem in apron fashion and narrowly bound with self-material, which also finishes the neck. A green underskirt, also of crepe, is worn with the frock, while soft green mulline drops long at the side.

Cut your coat according to your cloth.
To buy cheap is dear in the long run.
Short reckoning makes lasting friends.
Shear your sheep but don't skin them.
A woman's blow never gave a black eye.
A walker is a bad companion for a rider.
The thief goes on stealing till he is hanged.
Every man is the architect of his own fortune.
He that is afraid of leaves must not come in the wood.
If the father is a fisherman, the children look into the water.
Don't boast until the work is finished.
Labor is bitter, but its fruit is sweet.
